ELYRIANS LOSE IN BROKERAGE FAILURE

United States, England And Japan Fail To Break Deadlock

RAILROAD STRIKE PROPOSAL FACES ANOTHER CLIMAX WITH BOARD REPORT TOMORROW

Fail To Agree On Hughes Plan After Two Hours' Session ---Japs Want Larger Rates

WASHINGTON, Nov 30—The naval experts of the United States, Great Britain and Japan met in secret for nearly two hours today and failed to break the deadlock which has resulted from Japan's refusal to accept the ratio of 10-10-6 laid down in the original Hughes proposal

When the session broke up, it was learned that the experts would report to their respective delegations that no headway had been made, leaving the principal delegates themselves to thresh out the matter.

It is understood that at this morning's session Vice Admiral Kato chief of the Japanese naval advisers, formally demanded that the ratio for his country be changed from sixty per cent to sev nty per cent This was rejected by the American experts assistant secretary of the navy Roosevelt, Admiral R E Coontz and Rear Admiral Pratt.

It is expected that the American advisers will urge Secretary of State Hughes to make public the detailed figures upon which the amicable culminations were based These figures will show that from any conceivable angle of figuring,

GUNMEN CLAIM THIRD VICTIM AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Nov 30—While Cleveland police were speeding to identify a suspect arrested on a New York Central train there, Hugh Gaughn died in a Cleveland hospital this morning the third victim of Cleveland's latest crime wave

Gaughn the father of eight child ren was shot twice by bandits on a raid on a soft drink parlor at 6211 Cedar avenue last night He was taken to St Luke's hospital, where his wife is a patient

His death came as a result of an attempt to save a friend, Albert Hill Seeing a gun leveled at Hill, he grabbed the weapon, but the second bandit fired two shots at Gaughn, one hitting him near the heart

Both escaped

PLENTY GAS FOR 20 YEARS SAYS EXPERT

CLEVELAND Nov 30—West Virg nia gas fields have a sufficient supply of natural gas to supply consumers for twenty years at least, if the supply is properly conserved C E Krebs, geologist and mining engineer, said upon the witness stand today in appelate court, where the issue of increased rates for Cleveland is being fought out between the city and the East Ohio Gas Company, Standard Oil subsidiary, which supplies Cleveland and other cities with gas

Krebs said that the Hope Natural Gas Company, also a Standard Oil concern, has 639,392 acres of undeveloped gas territory in West Virginia and estimated that this territory would produce 854,619,000,000 cubic feet of gas. The Hope Company which furnishes the East Ohio Gas Company with its supply recently increased its rates declaring that the fields were near exhaustion.

GIRL SUICIDES

STEUBENVILLE, Nov. 30—Despondency is said to have been the cause of the suicide of Miss Iva Blossom Hood, 24, whose body was found in the Ohio river about 50 feet from her home, north of the city early this morning. The young woman has suffered from an affected arm and feared amputation. She waded into the swollen waters of the Ohio river.

Irish Parley Has Another Rebuff Today

LONDON Nov. 30—Optimism over Premier Lloyd George's ability to weather the Irish peace storm which had been apparent here, gave way to pessimism as the day advanced About the only hopeful spot in London was the premier's headquarters

The opinion was advanced in some quarters that the negotiations had virtually broken down as a result of the recalcitrant attitude of the ulster unionists It is reported from Dublin and Belfast that Irish extremists in both the south and north are straining at the leash and are endangering the armistice

Sir James Craig, premier of the ulster unionist government of ulster notified Premier Lloyd George that even if the proposal for a joint Irish parliament is eliminated, ulster will refuse to enter negotiations on a new basis unless Sinn Feiners agree to a clear cut declaration of allegiance to King George

It is expected that the British cabinet will send a communication to Belfast next Monday proposing a new formula for the Irish discussions.

BELFAST, Nov. 30.—Sir James Craig's defiant speech on Irish peace was followed by an outbreak of disorder early today. A woman fatally wounded in a bomb explosion and a workman was shot and killed in Croman street

LONDON, Nov 30—A full meeting of the cabinet was held this afternoon to get reports from Sir John Bradbury, British reparations expert, and Lord D'Abernon, British ambassador to Germany, upon the advisability of Germany declaring indemnity moratorium

DUBLIN Nov 30—The Sinn Fein has not relinquished any of its political aims as a result of the London peace negotiations Eamonn Devalera declared in a speech at Ennis today

"We stand by the same principles as we held four years ago" said the Irish leader

STATE PROBES GAS OVERCOME FAMILY HERE

The eight members of the family of John Reitz, 51 Woodland avenue who were overcome with gas yesterday, are slowly recovering from the effects of their experience Mr. Reitz and Milton, the oldest boy, are able to be up but the balance of the family are still in bed and are very weak

The state took recognition of the occurrence, and this morning three state employees of State Fire Marshal H A Dykeman from Cleveland, went to the house and made an investigation The result of their findings is not known.

Mrs. Albert Hemenbeham, next door neighbor of the Reitz family, goes the credit of discovering the condition of the family. She called the police when something told her that there was something wrong at her neighbor's home.

The city firemen, and not the police, were also the ones who hustled over with the pulmotor, and skillfully restored little Norman, who was the worst over come.

Mayor Jones sent over the city nurse and two other nurses from Memorial hospital were quickly on the job and worked hard to make the family comfortable W H Vanoster, of the Fay Stocking Co, where Mr Reitz was employed went over and took charge of things He furnished money and secured help to care for the family until they are ready to again care for themselves The neighbors were also on the job, and the father expresses himself as very grateful for the aid given himself and family.

BOOMERANG FOR SUING DOCTOR

The case of Dr Louis Robechek Cleveland, against George P. Schon, executor of the estaate of the late O. P. Chapman, Wellington was given to a jury yesterday afternoon and resulted in a verdits for the defendant against the plaintiff for $908.26.

Dr Robechek sued to recover $6,450 claimed to be due for professional services during a period of years. The defendant was able to prove to the satisfaction of the jurors that he had paid for his services At the same time they produced notes signed by Dr Robechek that had not been paid, and they gave a verdict accordingly.

LONDON, Nov. 30—Lord Mount Stephen, one of the builders of the Canadian Pacific railway, died today.

Important Decision On Working Rules and Agreements Forthcoming --- Southern Railroad Reduces Wages

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—The railroad labor issue which a few weeks back almost precipitated a nationwide strike, is expected to be brought sharply to the front in the immediate future.

Tomorrow the United States railway labor board will make public its long awaited and trehpendously important decision on working rules and agreements affecting all class one railroads in the U. S This decision which the board has been working on unceasingly for months, will contain more than 100 new rules and will be a most comprehensive and far reaching document It will be a revision of the agreement negotiated by the railway unions with the federal railroad administration during the war period Special significance is given the issuance of the new working code at this time, which is earlier than anticipated for two reasons

1—It opens the way for a new crisis in the event the unions are not satisfied with the revised regulations.

2—It paves the way for immediate applications for wage reductions on the part of the railroads, a move fraught with dangerous possibilities While the strike set for a month ago was averted on the tacit understanding that the question of further wage reductions would not come up for several months, until the matter of working rules was disposed of—the board will now have no alternative than consider such applications as the road might make

The situation may come to a head within a few weeks in the event that both the men and the roads are dissatisfied with the decision, which is considered quite likely. It was pointed out today

FIELD FINED FIVE HUNDRED SOLD LIQUOR

William Field, proprietor of the Ohio hotel, came into police court this morning and pleaded guilty on a charge of violating the liquor ordinance of the city. Some ten days ago the police raided the hotel and arrested Mark Bryant, and two of the employees of the hotel, charging the whole party with liquor violations.

Mayor Jones promptly fined Mr. Feld $500 and costs, and he produced the money, stating that he never would be caught again Robert Huckrode, one of the employees of the hotel, who has been in jail since the occurrence, was fined $200 and costs, and was released on payment of the costs

FEARS SPECTRE OF SUICIDE'S GHOST SO PAYS $130,000

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 30.—The spectre of a meeting in the hereafter with Isham Taylor, former vice president of the defunct Farmers' Bank of Newburg, Ind., who ended his own life, and of being confronted with the failure of the bank and Taylor's suicide, forced Jourgen Olsen, to decide to repay heavy losses to the institution's stockholders, it was declared today by members of a delegation of depositors who visited Olsen, who is head of a chain of banks, at his home in Minot, N. D.

"I don't want to die and meet Taylor and have him confront me with the failure of the bank and his suicide," Olsen was quoted as saying. "I am going to pay back every cent."

The losses amount to about $130,000.

"Industrial Democracy" Discussed at Open Forum By Author of Plumb Plan

"Industrial Democracy," was the subject of Glen Plumb's address at the Open Forum in Machinists' hall last evening

It was a well wrought out address delivered with conviction to an audience that filled the auditorium

He opened his remarks by a discussion of the principles of democracy He explained that industrial democracy was no different than any other kind of democracy, that democracy was democracy He explained the meaning of the Jeffersonian democracy by the rule of the people

He then discussed the Bill of Rights and emphasized the idea that under the Bill of Rights every man had the right to the product of his own labor He spoke then of the development of corporations and of the tendency by them to absorb certain prerogatives of the people He said that the only way that they or the people themselves could live today was through service. that service was living

Outlines Corporations

He then proceeded to outline a theory or plan for the conduct and control of the great corporations by the national government He started out this part of his address by calling attention to the fact that Congress had control of interstate commerce Hence he declared that if Congress should establish corporations under certain

RUMOR JAPAN WILL REJECT HUGHES' PLAN

WASHINGTON, Nov 30—Unconditional rejection of the American proposal for naval reduction to a 5-5 3 basis will be Japan's final ultimatum to the conference, it was stated today by one of the chief naval advisers of the Japanese delegation

The Tokio delegation will throw the armament and far east conference into a "winter siege" rather than recede from their demand for a 10-10 7 ratio, the high naval expert declared

In explaining Japan's determined stand, the Nipponese naval authority adopted General Grant's famous declaration, "We will fight it out along this line if it takes all winter."

At the same time, it was declared that Japan has no intention of bolting the conference" irrespective of the outcome of the naval deliberations The delegation of the island empire is in full accord with the Hughes proposal as a principle' but is irrevocably opposed to the American 'interpretation"

"The Americans will not agree to the Japanese method of determining existing naval strengths," the naval authority said 'Japan cannot and will not agree to the American method of determining actual naval strengths We cannot and will not compromise on the American plan

The naval experts said that the result of such a deadlock means that the issue will be thrown back to the chief delegates of the three powers, where Japan will maintain the same attitude

'The Hughes plan is inconsistent with itself,' he continued. "In the preamble to his plan Mr Hughes set forth that no nation is expected by any other to disarm itself to a point of endangering its national safety In his program for disarmament, Mr Hughes then sets the delimitation ratio at 5-5-3 In other words, Japan is allotted a navy sixty per cent tonnage of the fleets of Great Britain and the United States It is the contention of my colleagues that this endangers the national safety of Japan.

"It is the Japanese contention that this plan has been evolved from a fallacious promise Japan holds that the inclusion of ships under construction in total capital tonnage is unreasonable. For, Japan is constructing only three capital ships, while America has, I believe, eighteen ships included in its capital tonnage, which are now in course of construction.

Dunfee Wins Out In Slander Case

This morning the case of Jacob Knieper against Raymond Dunfee was all ready to be tried by a jury, when it was taken in hand by Judge Redington who directed a verdict for the defendant. Knieper sued Dunfee for $2000 slander damages, claiming that Dunfee had accused him of stealing some chickens. After the preliminary statement of the plaintiff's attorney Judge Redington ordered the jury to return the verdict.

ARREST SISTER AND BROTHER AFTER CUTTING

DAYTON, Nov 30—Rosie Scinnamblo, 19, of Cleveland, and her brother Carlos, 27, Middletown, were arrested last night by Dayton police and are held for authorities in Middletown, where they are said to be implicated in the cutting of John Gerard, 32, of 712 Logan avenue, Middletown.

Gerard is in the Middletown city hospital with severe wounds across his back. Physicians say they do not believe he will recover.

HOLD UP MEN SLUG VICTIM

A young man named M Atkins residing on West street, reported to the police that last night while on Lodi street on his way home, he was held up by three men, who searched his clothing for money He did not have any on him, and one of the men became enraged and struck him a vicious blow on the jaw. The three then disappeared The police combed the neighborhood but could not locate the men

Sheriff Catches Lorain Burglar

Sheriff Backus had a lucky catch this morning when he arrested Dan Maszuros Lorain, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons Maszuros was walking down the Ramsey railroad tracks when he drew a gun and fired it

He was observed by Deputy Sheriffs H C Gawn and A R Brightbill, who at once notified the sheriff He left at once and found the man in charge of the deputies He had a grip with him, which on being opened was found filled with articles stolen a few nights ago from Roth's clothing store at Lorain

There were two new suits of clothes, underwear, necktles and gloves in the grip that the sheriff recognized as being part of the stuff stolen He took Maszuros to Loraiu and turned him over to the police

Joe Nagy, of this city, and Mike Pogan of Lorain, are already under arrest charged with the same burglary.

Auto Is Ditched Near Ridgeville

A Ford automobile, with trailer that contained a cow and calf, was thrown in the ditch near the railroad crossing at Ridgeville at noon today The rig belonged to Fred Wise, of this city, and was driven by one of his employees. GERMAN CHIEF ASKS ENGLAND TO HELP RUSS

BERLIN, Nov 30 Hugo Stinnes, German industrial magnate, and banker, who recently visited London, urged upon Premier Lloyd George the necessity of reconstructing Russia as one of the chief means of rehabilitating Germany and the rest of Europe, he revealed today After remaining silent since his return from London answering all questions with a smile and a shrug of the shoulders Herr Stinnes made a speech today before the association of German industrialists, a report of his London trip

The exact nature of Herr Stinnes journey to London was a matter of keen speculation both inside and outside of Germany

"The reconstruction of Russia with outside assistance was emphatically suggested,' said Herr Stinnes European recovery depends to a large extent upon Russia

Germany does not possess any raw materials but England and America have them in abundance

"The allies therefore must manufacture one half of European wares these to be completed in German factories This would help Germany pay her indemnity "German railways are in bad cond tion " They cannot bear the brunt of such heavy traffic as would be put upon them if Russia were opened They must be reorganized and taken over from the government into private hands

'It is of prime importance that haste be made in extending the needed assistance"

Sir John Bradbury takes the stand that German indemnity is closely bound up with world recovery and that the German burden is hindering rehabilitation everywhere.

Hugh Stinnes' proposal for German exploitation of Russia with the assistance of the British, were discussed also

It was intimated that Herr Stinnes program has the support of Premier Lloyd George's colleagues The premier has an appointment to confer with Leonid Krassin, bolshevik trade envoy, on the same subject

Sir John Bradbury had worked out detailed plans for the assistance of both Russia and Germany, but they had not been approved by the premier up to the time the cabinet met

The German representatives who have been visiting in London during the past few weeks have impressed on the British the fact that Germany cannot continue to make her indemnity payments unless she receives help from the outside It was declared Germany would just be able to meet her January quota if she leased her railways or resorted to some other such scheme to raise funds After January only a moratorium will save Germany from bankruptcy in the opinion of German officials themselves

"Him whom the gods would destroy they first make mad."

If there is one thing more than another that would ruin a cause quickly, whether it be a just cause or an unjust one, it is the use of force. The moment any individual or group of individuals appeals to the god of might, they indicate that their confidence in right has vanished.

The man who is confident of the righteousness of his position can always afford to trust the future and conduct himself with confidence and dignity. Sometimes even in a just cause people foolishly imagine that something is gained by an appeal to the club. In the long run it is never true.

The same principles hold true in the relation between nations. The nation that is in the right can afford to appeal to a tribunal to determine upon the justice of the matter. The nation that is in the wrong usually appeals to arms.

We believe that as a rule when people have used force against the speaker it has been because the man presented arguments and facts that they could not answer. They became angry because of the lack of confidence in their own case. We are lead to seriously question a cause that cannot stand the light of free speech.

If we knew nothing about the Reverend Mr. Bustard's history or his activities in Cleveland we would judge from the fact that his home was assaulted that he had been fighting iniquity in some form and that malice and hatred were arroused against him

THE WAY TO LOSE A CAUSE

It is charged that the burning of the dairy plant in Wellington was of an incendiary origin and it is believed by many that the milk drivers in Cleveland had something to do with it.

We do not know, but we do know that if they did they could do nothing more serious to injure their cause than to commit such a depredation

The milk producers have a natural sympathy for the milk drivers. The milk producers feel that the great milk distributing organizations of our cities are getting the lion's share of the consumer's dollar and their natural sympathy goes out to those who are working for these organizations, but such a deed as was done at Wellington turns their sympathy into antagonism, and in a democracy you must depend upon public sentiment to win

Laying aside, therefore, the question of moral wrong in the destruction of property it is a very serious blunder to lose the regard and sympathy of your natural friends.

A cause in any contest had better lose with the public believing that they ought to win than win temporarily with the public believing that they should receive defeat, for in the end the public are going to determine the issue.

AN INTERESTING DILEMMA

The general impression is abroad that many of the state senators desire a special session of the legislature. The impression is equally wide reaching that the governor does not desire a special session. Those who desire a special session are endeavoring to work out a tax program between the house committee and the senate committee which they can insist stands a probability of passage.

It would be quite interesting, if as a result of attempting to get a special session, some people would change their mind upon a tax program.

It is likely that the governor will have a tendency to believe that no agreed upon program can be put over. His skirts are clear up to date as far as endeavoring to work out the tax program is concerned. He showed great interest to do it some months ago.

Of course if a real program is agreed upon and in faith the committees get together, a special session will be called and relief afforded, regardless of who it ... help politically.

Weak Blood Causes Baffling Feeling of Exhaustion

There is nothing so sensational as living in the glow of good health, and nothing so empty as existing in the bleakness of disordered health

There is the direct testimony of medical and ordinary experience to prove that Gude's Pepto-Mangan restores poor blood to its natural healthy stage. Physicians know its value and have prescribed it for years Tens of thousands of men and women and children rely upon it. Pepto-Mangan revives blood which has left its mark on the complexion and the disposition Features hardened by sour feelings soften into a pleasant expression The sensation of living—tasting, breathing seeing the colors in sunshine scenting the perfume of flowers, relaxing in the sweet refreshments of sound sleep—everything is enjoyed with intensity It is red-blooded living Gude's Pepto Mangan has the name on the package and is sold by your druggist in liquid or tablet form —Advt.

WELLINGTON HAS MANY PHONE SUBSCRIBERS

WELLINGTON, Nov. 30.—There are few, if any, business places in Wellington that have not a telephone and practically every home in the community has one With a population of nearly 3,000 there are about 1,000 telephone subscribers of the Wellington Telephone company This number of telephones for the population is unusually large according to those who are in position to know

The Wellington Telephone company has just completed installing a semi-automatic system and moved into its new quarters A new directory has just been issued owing a large increase in the number of subscribers over the previous semi-annual directory

Business men say that they have of the best telephone systems in the country that the attaches of the central office are alert and obliging

The company has expended large sums during the last year in putting all the lines underground in business section and the work will be extended to the residential part of the town soon in addition to installing the new semi-automatic service in the new exchange building

Today there are no wires strung in the business section of Wellington but the street light wires

The increase in the height of women has gone on steadily for more than fifty years, but measurements have altered most notibly in the last two decades Our grandmothers stood barely five feet in their shoes but their daughters measure five feet four inches and their athletic granddaughters of today measure from five feet five to five feet ten in their stockings

We can progress—we have progressed since that day—private war has been abolished Can we do away with public war?

Have the thousands of martyrs of religion and democracy died in vain? The corpses of the fallen in this great war placed head to heels would reach around the world

When H G Wells, the great British novelist came to this country to write of the conference Ralph Pulitzer gave him a dinner There were there those literary and those financial and those political When Wells rose to address them he spoke in a most pessimistic vein—'we are all" said he, 'on a sinking ship," and all our present life and civilization in danger of foundering It was refreshing to see the other guests headed by Young Chauncey Depew (only 87) rise one by one and cry out the gospel of optimism Even the tactful speech of Max Eastman the revolutionist was tinged with the colors of the rainbow

We in America are invincible in our optimism The ship on which we are embarked shall not sink No we will load the old ship with good wishes and ideals and help and hope and sail it, a relief ship of the imagination into every port of the world

Better Business For Akron Plants

AKRON, Nov 30.—The Seiberling Rubber Company, organized by the former head of the Goodyear, was today granted the right to offer five millions in stock to Ohio buyers. The shares will be sold in units of 250 for two shares of common and two of preferred. The firm now owns the Lehigh plant at New Castle, Pa, and the Portage plant at Barberton

In an address before the builders exchange last night, F. A. Seiberling urged greater confidence in the outcome of business conditions "Akron has passed its lowest point" he said, "but there are several adjustments necessary, among them the wage question. Workingmen must take their part of the liquidation as have the business men."

Officials of the Goodrich Rubber Company admitted today that old employees are being taken back. A sign "wanted 500 men" was hung out today for the first time in nearly two years. Former employees are being given the preference. They will be put to work in all departments provisions the penalty for failing to comply to work under these conditions would be the inability to obtain the right to engage in interstate commerce, would insure at once the conformity by these corporations to the plans laid down by the government.

Industrial Democracy

The first principle was that stock holders should naturally receive their reward in order to invest. He provided for a profit to be paid upon the stock. The plan provided, of course, for wages to be paid for labor. He said as it is now, the stockholders vote. They can vote in proportion as they have invested. The amount which they have invested determines the amount which they shall receive on their investment. He said that "We will say that $20,000 investment receives $1,200 reward or interest. He said that a man working for the corporation, receiving $1,200 in wages, ha dthe same interest in the corporation.

Shares for Employees

He had received for his investment interest in the form of wages that the other man had received for his investment, wages in the form of interest, but very evidently they were making the same investment and would have the same rights in a democracy to vote in proportion to their investment. So he would give the employee votes in the same ratio, as the stock investor determined by the amount each received n the form of wages or dividends

He said the third party, the public, were interested in just two things, and only two things One was the price of the article and the other the quality of the article or service.

He proceeded then to show that under his plan he had provided for the protection of the price and the quality for the public and at the same time provided an inducement for greater service by labor. He defined labor to be 'All human effort used for production or service ' He explained how it was necessary for every corporation to have a surplus 'n order to exist and expand He said that in this plan for industrial democracy, he would provide that one-half of the surplus should be divided between labor and capital in proportion as they had received in wages or dividends and their half should be used to retire capital which is invested in the enterprise so that the following year there would be less money to be paid out in the form of interest or dividends That in proportion that this was true, that the price of the article should be scaled down to allow for this difference in the amount that must be paid out

Public Would Gain

Here is where the public would gain its reward Under his plan he maintained therefore that the labor would get an increasing reward as it produced more cheaply and efficiently that capital would receive its reward but tend constantly towards the elimination from the enterprise and that difficulty and price would be insured the public.

In answer to questions he said that the capital which was eliminated from the enterprises through this process would be absorbed by the development and creative power that lay in the genius of men

He magnified labor, defining capital to be simply stored up labor, and said that the Creator Himself only worked through those whom He had created, and that by creating and working one was doing the work of God H m self

He showed as an argument for this industrial democracy and its development, how under the present condition there is a tendency to curtail production He illustrated by referring to a cracker company reducing the size of its crackers, both in the number that are in the package and selling them for more money He showed that it was doing the same thing, namely, decreasing the amount to the public and increasing the amount received from the public, as the laborer was decreasing the hours of his labor and increasing the amount received for his day's work

Address Well Received

He said, in the case of the laborer it is condemned, but in the case of business men doing it, it is a matter of business In this connection, he said that labor however, was more than a product of merchants, that it was the powers of the Creator Himself which were being used and it was inconceivable to do up a package of such powers and sell it over the counter for money

The address appeared to be well received and there were many enthusiastic remarks concerning the speech

Gwyllim Jones, president of the Central Labor Union, presided, and R B Whitehead, secretary of the organization, lead the singing

Railroad Strike

that when the board last summer drafted only seven working rules, both sides expressed dissatisfaction

Tension is regarded as almost certain to follow tomorrow's decision as the question of working rules is considered by the men fully as important, if not more so, than the question of wages. It will be recalled that of the 2,000,000 men involved in the recent strike movement, 1,419,663 declined to respond to the summons of the "big five" unions on the ground that they were more concerned in the board's forthcoming decision on working rules than they were in the 13 1-2 per cent wage cut issue which was then the basis for the strike call. This majority faction constituted the railway employees department of the A. F. and L., the shopcraft unions. It is the shopcrafts that will be principally affected by the world's new decision

The question of overtime pay, Sunday pay, the piecework system and skilled men in unskilled jobs, are among the important matters expected to be included in the decision These questions have been bitterly debated before the board for months by representatives of the roads and the men. The roads complained that they are being put to great and unnecessary expense by futile rules and restrictions and asked for numerous changes to labor such as inauguration of the piecework system Labor, on the other hand, claimed it was fighting for the retention of regulations that represent enlightened public opinion and the progress of labor

Any action taken by union officials it was said today, would be taken in the light that a brand new issue had been created. There is no strike call contingent on the decision regarding new working rules pending

ST LOUIS, Nov 30—Notice has been served on approximately 22-000 employees of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad that the management intends to make a reduction in wages ranging from 12 to 42 per cent effective December 16 W E Williams general manager of the road announced here today

CHICAGO, Nov 30—Any further readjustments of the wages of the employees of the railroads of the country, either upward or downward must be made fit into new working rules which the U S railway labor board will announce tomorrow, Vice Chairman Ben W Hooper, of the board declared here in a speech bristling with significant allusions to pending railroad issues He spoke at a noon luncheon before the Chicago association of commerce

He said that the decision which the board will make effective tomorrow will leave the board free to consider requests for wage adjustments long before either the railroads or the unions bring formal requests before the board

This statement was taken to mean that the board will take the initiative on the wage issue

"It is now apprehended in some quarters," Hooper said, "that the railroad labor organizations may either dictate to the government or in an effort to do so strangle commerce and plunge the country into industrial strife and misery.

"The time will never come again when the American public will be willing to give the carriers and their employees unrestrained freedom to engage in industrial warfare, to the destruction of peace comfort and property of the innocent third party the public"

Hooper said in justice to labor that it has been less guilty of violating the decisions of the labor board than the carriers But he added, labor organizations "like many other things inherently good, are susceptible of abuse through passionate and greedy leadership."

The issues of the future he said, must be handled on a "sensible, just and firm public policy"

United States

Japan's existing naval strength cannot be estimated at more than the sixty per cent which she has been allotted.

The basis of the American program is "to stop where you are" in competitive building The American experts are prepared to show that if Japan stops where she is—as America and Great Britain have agreed to do, her strength will be less than the sixty per cent allotted and that as a matter of fact the ratio of 10-10-6 is "extremely liberal."

There were unmistakable evidences today that the Japanese themselves are not in perfect accord over the seventy per cent demand The naval members of the delgation, headed by Admiral Baron Kato, are demanding that the ratio be increased, but the political and diplomatisc members of the delegation are understood to be inclined towards acceptance of the Hughes program as it lays.

It is understood that some feeling has developed on this point between Vice Admiral Kato and Prince Tokugawa, the nominal head of the delegation This feeling is said to have been heightened last night by Tokugawa's statement to the American correspondents.

In speaking of Admiral Kato's statement that seventy per cent was the minimum which Japan could accept, Tokugawa said it represented the admiral's personal opinion and not necessarily the official view of the delegation.

It was reported today that this statement, coming from Prince Tokugawa was not pleasing to the naval members of the delegation.

Japan is not gauging its future naval strength on a "defensive basis," the expert revealed.

"My nation does not plan an offensive war, but in the cold light of naval technology, Japan must have a navy of offensive strength to wage successfully any defensive war.

"If an enemy fleet of ten ships laid siege to Japan, we would have to send out at least ten defensive ships to lift the blockade We could not do it with six We must have ten ships to fight ten ships And we will have them"

The Tokio expert also revealed that Admiral Coontz, the American chief of naval operations is the spokesman for America in her meeting with Japanese experts

Admiral Coontz, he said, "can not see our point We have given our demand for a higher ratio The Americans have given no reasons for taking the stand they do I am often asked "why does Japan insist upon a seventy percent naval status?" My reply always is 'why does America insist on sixty percent for Japan?' America does not answer"

The nipponese seaman concluded by airing the Japanese viewpoint on dismantling of all fortresses in the Pacific.

"Why should America desire fortresses and coaling stations or the forces of Japan. Japan does not desire a great naval base in the shadow of the golden gate. It is as long a voyage from Japan to California as from California to Japan. If America does not contemplate such a cruise, Japan holds she d stroy her fortresses in the lee of our shores."

LUXURY TAX TO GO AFTER JANUARY 1ST

Elyria merchants are elated because the new revenue law becomes effective Jan. 1, 1922. Their joy was founded on the fact that under the new order the merchants will not be required to collect a luxury tax from consumers and make monthly returns to the revenue department

But the consumer was not so dire that he should be jubilant for while the so-called luxury tax after January 1 will be paid by the manufacturer, the consumer will eventually have to settle

However, the removing of the tax on sodas will come as a great relief to consumers and dealers alike.

Here are some of the things that are ruled to be luxuries costing over a certain sum under the law now in effect and for which the merchants must collect a tax from consumers

Carpets and rugs picture frames, trunks, valises, purses portable lighting fixtures umbrellas, parasols, sun shades fans, house or smoking jackets waistcoats separate from suits mens boys women's and girls' hose neckties mens shirts, pajamas night shirts night gowns, underwear kimonos and petticoats

Under the new law the amount of the tax on many articles and which is payable by manufacturers is greatly reduced in some cases fifty per cent

[Ma]rk Twain's Dream Fulfilled on Eighty-Sixth Anniversary of His Birth

"It Took a Marshal Foch to Honor Mark Twain, The Man of Letters. It Would Take an Insight Into Sacred Precincts to Honor Mark Twain, the Husband and Father." Son of William Dean Howells, Beloved Friend of Mark Twain, Reminisces on Home Life of Famous Humorist.

On November 19, in New York City, Marshal Foch laid the corner stone of the new home of the American Academy of Arts and Letters. He thus fulfilled the dream of Mark Twain, who was one of the literary leaders who founded the National Institute of Arts and Letters in 1904. The foundation of the academy, now chartered by the Federal Government, was laid through the National Institute of Arts and Letters, seventeen years ago.

Mark Twain's birthday, November 30th, has an added significance this year because of that achievement. It took a Marshal Foch to honor Mark Twain, the man of letters. It would take an insight into sacred precincts to honor Mark Twain, the husband and father. He is one of the big men of the last generation who have proved that genius does not have to live a life of irregularity. He is one of those great leaders like Theodore Roosevelt, William McKinley, and Thomas A. Edison, whose home lives have typified the tranquility and constancy which can inhabit the so-called troubled spirit of genius.

The "private life" of Mark Twain! The expression is in itself a paradox, for such a beloved figure is no longer entitled to a private life. Of him it can be truly said, "He belongs to the public."

His home life was placid, beautiful, and yet in all its beauty it had a bitter sweetness. Out of this bitterness came some of the most exquisite things he ever wrote. Out of it came such books as his "Joan of Arc."

MARK TWAIN, THE HUSBAND AND FATHER.

It was a radiant thing which he gave to his wife—all the generosity and all the sweetness of his spirit. He poured into his home life all that he poured into his writing—his fulsomeness. He not only met his obligations to his family in full, but more than in full. He was an inspired father, a glorious father.

The life of Mark Twain is one of the most pathetic of human documents. It was his lot to count the graves of his wife, his little son and his two daughters. One critic, in describing the latter part of his career, aptly says:

"He washed about on a forlorn sea of banquets and speech-making."

Few of those who knew Mark Twain, the man, are living today. Of his immediate family there remains only one daughter, Madam Clara Clemens, the well-known concert singer, wife of Ossip Gabrilowitsch, world-famous pianist and conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

In New York City lives a niece, Mrs. Edward E. Loomis, who before her marriage bore the same name as his wife—Olivia Langdon.

Katie Leary, who was his housekeeper for twenty-nine years and who has been conducting a rooming house in New York City, is ill in a sanitorium.

John Mead Howells, son of William Dean Howells, the one friend who Mark Twain was never too old, too tired, or too sad to see, is a noted architect of New York City.

JOHN MEAD HOWELLS AND "STORMFIELD."

It was John Mead Howells who designed Mark Twain's last home, at Redding, Conn., the place where the famous humorist died. In speaking of the strange circumstance which surrounded the planning and building of "Stormfield," Mr. Howells included intimate memories of Mark Twain which began when as a five-year-old child he visited the home of the Clemenses.

"The Clemens girls and my sisters and I were together as babies at Hartford," Mr. Howells recalled. "My father was a year older than Mark Twain, who used to speak of him playfully as 'old Mr. Howells.'

"Mark Twain's career involved a great deal of traveling, but he was never away from his home if he could help it. His whole life centered about his wife, and it was her death which really killed him. She was the lovliest creature you ever saw. He thought her an angel."

Because Mrs. Clemens had been happy in an Italian Villa at Florence, shortly before she died, Mark Twain instructed Mr. Howells to make his Redding home a dedication to that memory. To the young architect he said:

"Now, John, I don't want you to copy anything but I want this house to remind me of the villa we had outside of Florence."

"It was most uncomfortable for me," Mr. Howells reminisced, as he sat in an office worthy of an architect and of William Dean Howells' son. "He wouldn't look at the plans at all, and he wouldn't consult or write a letter about it. 'You build the house, I'll live in it,' he said. He told me only that he wanted a billiard room, and that all the rooms on the first floor should open into the other, ending with the billiard room. You see, he was very nervous, and liked to walk up and down in his slippers all day, in an unbroken course, from room to room. In every room there was a table with a box of strong cigars on it, and he would reach out into nearly every box during his walk.

BY THE BARREL.

"My father never cared anything about smoking, and I remember his asking, 'Clemens, what kind of cigars are those?'

"'I don't know,' Mark Twain answered, 'I get them by the barrel.' Then he added, 'But I never smoke more than one cigar at a time.'

"When he used to stay with us, he scared my mother to death because he would go to bed with a cigar in his mouth. She would send my father up to his room when she thought he was asleep, to take the cigar away from him."

Mr. Howells regarded through the smoke of his own cigar, and with a tender smile of reminiscence, the paneled picture of "Stormfield" upon the wall of his office.

"I simply couldn't get Mark Twain to look at the plans of that house," he said. "I recall the day I went down to his home at 21 Fifth avenue, determined to make him do so. Way down the hall, he saw me and this is the dialogue that took place:

"'That you, John?'

"'Yes.'

"'What's that sticking out under your coat?'

"'The plans.'

"'Well, leave them in the vestibule.'"

HIS OWN HOME AT LAST.

Mr. Howells then described the day upon which Mark Twain moved into the completed house:

"We pulled up the shades, straightened the rugs, fixed the billiard-balls in readiness, and when he went upstairs there were his slippers before the fire."

Mark Twain's home-coming—the arrival of that lonely, bereaved, white-haired figure at "Stormfield" is already immortalized by his biographer, Albert Bigelow Paine.

"At the entrance his domestic staff waited to greet him," Mr. Paine has chronicled, "and then he stepped across the threshold into the wide hall and stood in his own home for the first time in seventeen years. It was an anxious moment, and no one spoke immediately. But presently his eye had taken in the satisfying harmony of the place and followed on through the wide doors that led to the dining room—on through the open French windows to an enchanting vista of tree-tops and distant farmside and blue hills. He said, very gently:

"'How beautiful it all is! I did not think it could be as beautiful as this.'"

Before a year had passed, burglars broke into "Stormfield."

"Stupid people thought because Mark Twain was famous that he was rich," Mr. Howells explained, "but he cared nothing about money—he despised all that sort of thing. I think he used to wear his seal-skin coat which caused such a sensation in those days, just to tease my father."

"Stormfield," which belongs now to Madam Clara Clemens, is unoccupied today, although it has been recently proposed to make it a Mark Twain museum. During the war, Mr. Howells drew plans, at Madam Clemens' request, to change it into a hospital for wounded soldiers with a musical turn, but this project was abandoned owing to certain restrictions made by the Government.

Mark Twain's other homes are literary shrines which draw unending streams of admirers. Even the temporary sheltering places of the well-loved humorist, in New York City, are included in the route of the sight-seeing buses. The old and weatherbeaten little house in Florida, Missouri, where he was born, draws its crowd of literary worshippers, no matter how inaccessible it is. His later home in Elmira is haunted by enterprising newspaper reporters, eager for a new "angle."

MARK TWAIN'S ORDEAL.

To an outsider, the life of Mark Twain, the first private citizen to be courted by kings, was a life of glory and glamour. Those who knew him best, however, would testify that he rarely enjoyed a long period of unbroken happiness. Within the walls of his new historical home, he lost nearly everything he held dear.

The handsome Buffalo home, a gift from his bride's father, later witnessed a long and dangerous illness of his young wife and their baby boy, Langdon.

Soon after, in a new home in Hartford, little Langdon died.

Years later, in their permanent Hartford home, his blooming young daughter, Susie, was taken from him. "Ah, well, Susie died at home" he wrote to the Rev. "Joe" Twichell, who has received so many of Mark Twain's priceless letters. "If she had died in another house—well I think I could not have borne that."

In an Italian villa, at Florence, there occurred the supreme tragedy of Mark Twain's career, when the beautiful life of Mrs. Clemens drew to an end. Only those who have read the Mark Twain biographies can appreciate what the loss of his wife meant to him. He loved her from the first moment he looked upon her picture—a dainty miniature done on ivory and shown to him by her brother. Long after their marriage, he said:

"It is forty years ago. From that day to this she has never been out of my mind."

"ALL HIS WORSHIP, DEVOTION AND OBEDIANCE."

As a husband, he was whimsically more or less of a Peck's Bad Boy to his wife. She kept him in trim and subdued the wild flares of his personality. Some think this was for the better, and some think this was for the worse, but that is a matter of individual opinion. There is no doubt that he made concessions to her conservatism. He made her his only editor, and gloried in her dominion, in every way.

William Dean Howells, in writing of his beautiful and tender loyalty to her, said:

"It was a greater part of him than the love of most men for their wives, and she merited all the worship he could give her, all the devotion, all the implicit obedience, by her surpassing force and beauty of character."

On her thirtieth birthday, he wrote her a letter of exquisite tenderness:

"Livy Darling. Six years have gone by since I made my first great success in life and won you, and thirty years have passed since Providence made preparation for that happy success by sending you into the world. Every day we live together adds to the security of my confidence that we can never any more wish to be separated than we can imagine a regret that we were ever joined. You are dearer to me today, my child, than you were upon the last anniversary of this birthday; you were dearer then than you were a year before; you have grown more and more dear from the first of those anniversaries, and I do not doubt that this precious progression will continue on to the end.

"Let us look forward to the coming anniversaries, with their age and their gray hairs, without fear and without depression, trusting to make them blessed.

"So, with abounding affection for you and our babies, I hail this day that brings you the matronly grace and dignity of three decades!"

"THE DEEPER THE LOVE, THE SURER THE TRAGEDY."

Mark Twain never became resigned to the loss of his wife, and his views on marriage were colored accordingly. Although marriage had brought him his greatest joy in life, it had also brought him his greatest bereavement. The following letter shows the tinge of sadness which had crept into his congratulations for an approaching wedding:

"Marriage—yes, it is the supreme felicity of life, I concede it. And it is also the supreme tragedy of life. The deeper the love the surer the tragedy. And the more disconsolating when it comes.

"And so I congratulate you. Not perfunctorily, not lukewarmly, but with a fervency and fire that no word in the dictionary is strong enough to convey. And in the same breath and with the same depth and sincerity, I grieve for you. Not for both of you and not for the one that shall go first, but for the one that is fated to be left behind. For that one there is no recompense. For that one no redemption is possible.

"There are times—thousands of them—when I can expose the half of my mind, and conceal the other half, but in the matter of the tragedy of marriage I feel too deeply for that, and I have to blurt it all out or shut it all in. And so you must consider what I have been through, and am passing through and be charitable to me.

"Make the most of the sunshine! and I hope it will last long—ever so long. . . ."

GIVER OF LAUGHTER AND TEARS.

Through all of Mark Twain's humor, there runs a strain of sweetness and profundity which merges into a poignant tenderness in his later works. Toward the end of his life, after he had been bowed with sorrow, he became not only a giver of laughter, but a giver of tears. It was out of his own bereavement that he wrote into the humor of his "Adam's Diary" that line of immortal beauty in which Adam at Eve's grave reflects:

"Wheresoever she was, there was Eden."

Out of the bitterness of his last loss, the death of Jean, he penned in his autobiography some of the most exquisite lines in the English language. No one but a glorious father could have written such a weepingly beautiful thing to his child:

"Jean is dead!

"Has any one ever tried to put upon paper all the little happenings connected with a dear one—happenings of the twenty-four hours preceding the sudden and unexpected death of that dear one? Would a book contain them? Would two books contain them? I think not. They pour into the mind in a flood. They are little things that have been happening every day, and were always so unimportant and easily forgettable before—but now! Now, how different! how precious they are, how dear, how unforgettable, how pathetic, how sacred, how clothed with dignity!

"Would I bring her back to life if I could do it? I would not. If a word would do it, I would beg for strength to withhold the word. And I would have the strength; I am sure of it. In her loss I am bankrupt, and my life is a bitterness, but I am content: for she has been enriched with the most precious of all gifts—that gift which makes all other gifts mean and poor—death.

NOT IN BITTERNESS, BUT IN BRAVERY.

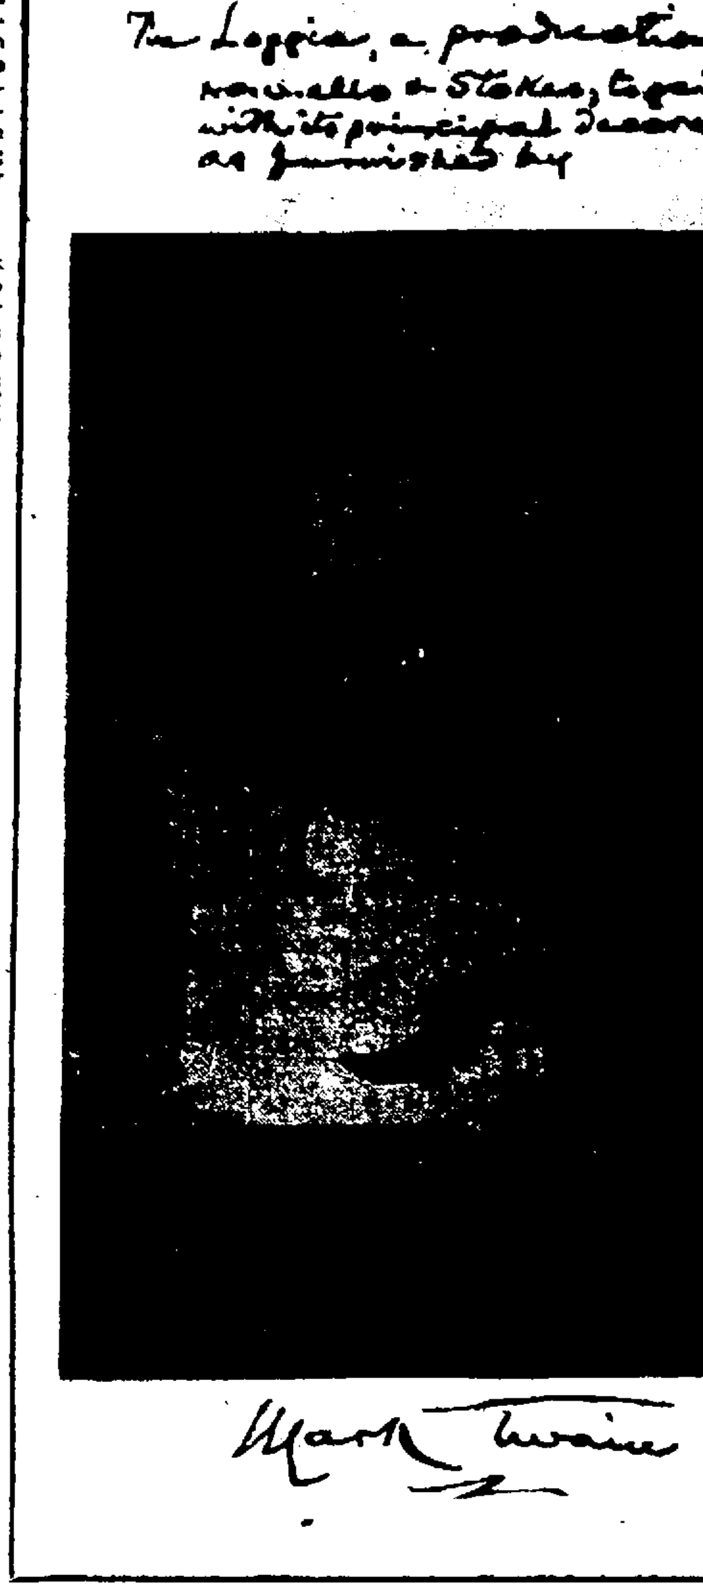

I have never wanted any released friend of mine restored to life since I reached manhood. I felt in this way when Susy passed away; and later my wife. . . ."

Mark Twain's lines to Jean's death are not nearly so sad as they are precious. They bring light to the mourner by the great forbearance that lies behind them. Even "Stormfield" which was the home of his last great sorrow, he thought of not in bitterness, but in bravery. This is what he says:

"Why did I build this house two years ago? To shelter this vast emptiness? How foolish I was. But I shall stay in it. The spirits of the dead hallow a house, for me. . . . It is dearer to me tonight than ever it was before. Jean's spirit will make it beautiful for me always. . . ."

Life did not sadden Mark Twain. It sweetened him. Bitterness did not destroy in him. It was something constructive. It created new powers. It put salt into his tear and a ring into his laughter.

THIN PEOPLE

THERE ARE 30,000,000,000,000 RED CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND EACH ONE MUST HAVE VITAMINES BEFORE YOU CAN EVER HOPE TO WEIGH NORMAL.

If you are thin, scrawny, haggard and rundown looking, and no matter how much you spend in clothes they fail to make you look dressed up and fashionable and you know the chief contributory cause of your wretchedly poor appearance is lack of normal weight, you should eat more vitamine vegetables such as lettuce, spinach and apples, and reinforce them from time to time when eating your meals with a little MEDIC-YEST, which is rich in vitamines, "the soul of food," so well spoken of by scientists and chemists as a vital food element.

If you want to put on good solid, firm, lasting flesh and build your below normal weight to normal with plenty of real nerve force, strength and vitality, you should obtain from your druggist a package of palatable, harmless, health-giving nourishment in the form of Medicinal Yeast under the name of MEDIC-YEEST. MEDIC-YEEST represents vitamines in such a highly concentrated form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equal (in vitamine content) to eating two heads of lettuce, half a quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or six apples. It's like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. MEDIC-YEEST is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by your system.

To prove to yourself what MEDIC-YEEST will do try this simple, well worth trying test: Weigh and measure yourself; next take the MEDIC-YEEST—two tablets with meals, then measure and weigh yourself again each week and simply continue taking until your gain in weight, looks and energy satisfy you—the scales, tape measure and mirror won't deceive you.

Thousands are using MEDIC-YEEST with meals to put on solid, firm, stay-there flesh, color in their cheeks and new strength and energy. Results are guaranteed or money refunded by manufacturers.

Why Guess About It— When You Can Know About It?

Suppose a guide said—

"This way there's a safe and pleasant road to your destination, with no risks or troubles on the way," and—

"That way there's a road that a good many have stalled on and turned back from, but you may get through."

Which would you take?

Postum is a thoroughly agreeable and satisfying meal-time drink, and you're sure that it's perfectly safe for health. Coffee contains drug qualities which disturb and harm the health of many.

Postum or coffee? Which road?

Why guess when you can know?

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

"The Confession," at Strand Theater, 4 Days Starting Tomorrow. Henry B. Walthall in Leading Role. Story of a Supreme Devotion Fulfilled

Bevy of Symmetrical Beautiful Girls Headline Show Here Friday

Group of Girls from "The Follies of New York," at the Rialto Theater, Friday, Night, December 2

[illegible] there is any value to a laugh, [illegible] who go to the Rialto theater [illegible]day night, Dec. 2, when "Follies of New York" will be the attraction will be money in pocket [illegible] their visit. Opinions may differ as to the show in some respects [illegible] when the comedy subject [illegible] is up, it is always found that [illegible]ions were unanimous. In the [illegible] place Fred Binder has for [illegible] been most successful in entertaining burlesque audiences. [illegible] opposite, Lew Lederer, works with him and is a most capable laugh getter. Having secured [illegible] competent mirth-provokers, E. [illegible]nas Beatty, proceeded to devise a sufficiently funny vehicle [illegible] this production and has furnished [illegible] for "Laughs a la Carte." But while the importance has been given to making this show an amusing one, the producer has not lost sight of the fact that burlesque audiences expect more than fun. He has given them a beauty show as well as a laughing one. Prettier girls than his choristers could hardly be imagined. More attractive wardrobe could hardly be expected and scenery representing a higher degree of stage artistry would be a superfluity. The case is in every way very competent to support the comedy workers and is composed of such talent as Sadie Banks, Al. Turpie, Carol Carey, Mae Kelley, Wallace Jackson and Murray Welsh. Prof. H. L. Lutz Defines Weakness In Ohio Tax Laws

OBERLIN, Nov. 30—Prof. H. L. Lutz gave the second of his lectures Tuesday afternoon in the faculty room of the library. His subject for both lectures was "The Defects of Ohio's Present System of Taxation." These defects, according to Prof. Lutz are (1) The fact that there is unjust double taxation in the attempt to tax intangible as property, and, (2) the failure to reach the tax paying ability represented by personal incomes not dependent on the use of property. The present crisis has been made worse by our blind reliance on the separation of the sources of state and local revenue, and on the Smith tax rate limitation law. The discussion of remedies will be presented at a later meeting. These lectures are given under the auspices of the Women's League of Voters.

MEMBERS OF FRESHMAN CLASSES TO BE GUESTS

WORK TO RESCUE MAN IN WRECK OF THEATER AFTER SEVEN KILLED

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Following recovery of seven bodies from the ruins of the new American theater in Brooklyn today, scores of searchers worked frantically in an effort to rescue a man whose groans could be heard issuing from beneath the mass of debris. Four workmen still were missing and it was believed this man was one of these. Seventeen men were injured when the roof and walls of the theater which was in course of construction gave way.

Sylvester Rosenthal and Samuel Moskowitz, owners and general contractors of the building were held by police on a charge of manslaughter following an investigation by District Attorney Lewis into the causes of the collapse. Lewis said the accident was due to faulty construction and said those responsible would be prosecuted.

Mother and Son Are Asphyxiated

MONROEVILLE, O., Nov. 30.—The bodies of Mrs. Sarah Ayres, 78, and her son, Frank, 47, were found in their home here last night. They had been asphyxiated by gas fumes. One gas burner in the room was lighted while the others, unlighted, were turned on.

Scene from "Bob Hampton of Placer" Marshall Neilan Production

One of the most picturesque and gripping chapters of American frontier history is revived on the screen in Marshall Nilans picture version of Randall Parrish's stirring story, "Bob Hampton of Placer," which comes to the American Theatre today and remains until Sunday.

Director eNilan is said to have employed more than 2000 Indians [illegible] and soldiers to reproduce in this gallant last stand against the Indian tribes of the far west.

James Kirkwood has the title role in this story, which is one of love and adventure, as well as battle with the redmen under Sitting Bull. Wesley Barry's smiling face and uncounted freckles will also be seen in a role especially created for him by Mr. Neilan.

OLD AGE, HIS MARK!

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in the charming discources of "The Professor at the Breakfast Table," refers to an unmistakable sign of old age. It is three parallel lines between the brows We can detect the first traces of disease by signs just as plain.

When a woman suffers from backache, nervous depression, dragging-down pains, and those ailments peculiar to women, it is plain that she needs a woman's medicine What other medicine could she more wisely resort to than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for half a century has proved the natural restorative for these troubles —Advt

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Information Madge Won from Mrs. Kronish.

I DO not think I ever in my life have been so surprised as I was when I shook the apron from the face of the hysterical woman in the kitchen of the roadside inn.

I had been prepared to see the wrinkled, twisted face of an old woman in the throes of genuine hysteria. But the face that stared sullenly up at me was that of a woman but little past middle-age, with a full unwrinkled face, in which large blue eyes were set rather far back, eyes that held no trace of tears. It was a florid face naturally, I guessed, but fear had drained it of color That she was anything but hysterical I knew in that first glance, although she continued to sob and laugh alternately in a creditable imitation of the real thing

For a second or two while I readjusted my ideas, I simply kept my firm, authoritative grip on her hands. Then I stooped so that I spoke directly into her ear

"If you wish to save Mr Kronish you will stop this instantly and listen to me You are only hurting him this way."

She pretended not to hear me for a few seconds, and I saw her eyes furtively searching the room

"Your friends have gone," I went on evenly "and they will not come back You are not fooling me. I know you're not hysterical But I can and will help you if you will let me Otherwise I must call the officers to you, and that will be very bad for your husband"

She caught her breath sharply at this, ceased her sobs and raucous laughter as if she had turned off a tap from which they flowed

"Who—are—you?" she asked, not defiantly but evidently to give herself time to plan her actions

"I Am Here to Help You."

I guessed her dilemma, and hoped that I was not wrong in my deduction She was still under the delusion that the man Smith was all-powerful. That the fear which had blanched her face and widened her eyes was divided between him and the officers of the law was patent. Whatever hold Smith had upon her husband or father, whichever Kronish was, was a potent one I wondered if there was any willingness in their allegiance or if it were based wholly upon fear with the secret rebellious loathing which always accompanies such an alliance and I resolved to gamble upon the latter theory

"A representative of the law" I said, trying not to be too stilted but I am here to help you not to hurt you Listen I used the word which observation has told me is almost necessary when talking to certain types of mentality. "Smith is through, done for. He has no more power over anybody. He has run away, and if the officers catch him he will be taken straight to prison. He never can hurt Mr. Kronish or you any more in any way, and nothing he can say against you will be believed if you only are willing to help the law."

Her eyes, large, unwinking, had been fixed on me while I spoke, and remained steadily gazing at me when I finished. I realized that she was weighing me, and I gazed squarely into her eyes, tensely willing her to believe me.

"You swear Smith has no more power?" she asked at last.

"Where Is Your Husband?"

"I swear it," I returned promptly, with as much solemnity as though I were upon a witness stand in a courtroom.

"All right," she said at last. "I believe you. What do you want me to tell?"

"Where is your husband?"

"If he got away, he has run through the woods to a place down the road where Smith has a—has a—"

"Hidden garage," I supplied The words seemed to come to me on the spur of the moment. A second before I had had no thought of such a solution, but it seemed to be the efficient preparation which a man like Smith would make

"Yes." Her eyes widened in amazement "How do you know?"

"Never mind" I returned willing she should think me possessed of secret information. "What then?"

"He will get the automobile ready and take Smith to his home or anywhere he wants to go—when he finds him But, oh, lady! Kronish is my man, and he's good. He does not help Smith be bad, he just has to help him get away."

"Will you come with me and some officers and show us that garage if I promise that neither you nor Kronish will be hurt?" I asked, feeling safe in making the promise, for I was willing to stake anything upon the essential rectitude of Kronish and his wife.

She looked at me again

"Yes, but if you are not telling me the truth and Smith comes back, I think he will kill me"

I am telling you the truth, and Smith will not dare to touch you," I returned. "Wait here a minute I will come back with the officer He is very kind Do not be afraid"

Col Travers was standing on the veranda I went swiftly to him and touched his sleeve.

"She has told me where her husband is" I said, "in a hidden garage down the road If you hurry—"

"Good work," he commented turning with me toward the house. "We will get her at—"

A shout from the lawn brought us swiftly around facing in that direction. From the woods at the side strode Dicky hatless and disheveled, but with a certain air of jauntiness which he never loses holding firmly by the arm the rotund little figure of Kronish.

Candidates Trying For Berths On Elyria Hi Basket Ball Team

By CLIFF. C. HENNINGS

Seventy-five Elyria High students answered Coach Peabody's call for basketball candidates Tuesday night at the High School The Coach held a short meeting composed largely of laying down training rules and the fundamentals of the cage game.

Practice will begin tomorrow night at the Lincoln Gym. The coach will have his hands full in turning out a top-notch team this season as only two Varsity men are back this year, Koppes and Hayes, the former a guard and the latter a forward. But the coach has a wealth of new material to select from, together with several regular subs from last year. Austin, Guthman, B. Dangerfield, Hauserman, Crowe and Mole have all had Varsity experience Crowe played guard with the University of Dayton prep school while Mole played with Columbia High of South Carolina. These two men may fill the holes left by N. Krugman and Sauver who will not be back this year. Every man will have to work hard to land a berth as Coach Peabody believes firmly in the "fight for a position" attitude.

The team will be handicapped somewhat by the absence of a suitable place to practice. The Lincoln gym is unsatisfactory due to the low ceiling making long high shots impossible while the Y M. C. A. gym is being used for classes and cannot be obtained only on certain days. An effort is being made to secure the Ely gym for practice purposes on the days that the Y. M. C. A. gym is unavailable.

Elyria has a hard schedule this year perhaps the hardest in several seasons as ten games have been booked so far. Manager Welton may book other games, as he has several teams in view, aong them Youngstown South, Lakewood and others.

The following schedule has been arranged for the coming season:

Dec. 16.—Faculty here
Dec 30—Alumni here
Jan. 6.—Elyria at Bellevue.
Jan. 13.—Elyria at Akron South.
Jan 21.—Wellington at Elyria.
Jan. 27.—Sandusky at Elyria.
Feb 3—Elyria at Oberlin.
Feb. 10—Elyria at Norwalk.
Feb. 17—Fremont at Elyria.
Feb 21—Lorain at Elyria.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results. AMHERST

COUNCIL TAKES UP DAMAGES IN GRADING WORK

AMHERST, Nov. 30—A regular meeting of the village council last evening discussed the suit of J. H. Frederick vs the Village of Amherst, with the plaintiff. It was decided that as payment to Mr. Frederick for the damage done his property by the grading for the paving, that a retaining wall be erected in front of his house

Frederick demanded an elaborate wall, a driveway and pillars at the end of the wall. The council objected and said that they would let Frederick go to court before they would accede to his demands It was decided to ask several local contractors to bid on the work as demanded by the plaintiff and to determine from the costs of the bids as to the course of action to follow.

"MY LITTLE GIRL HAS GAINED 15 POUNDS" SAYS HAPPY MOTHER

Little Rhode Island Girl Is As Bright and Cheery and Her Cheeks Are As Rosy As Ever

SHE CAN NOW KEEP UP IN HER CLASSES

"Only a Mother Can Understand What I Suffered When I Saw My Daughter Slowly Wasting Away," Says Mrs. Mary Smith

"Every time I look at my little girl's rosy cheeks my heart goes out in praise and gratitude to Tanlac," said Mrs. Mary Smith, of Peacedale, R. I, a suburb of Providence, recently.

"Until Mary was eleven years of age she always enjoyed good health and had a very happy, fun-loving disposition However, during the past three years she became very thin and frail. She took on a very sallow color, her tongue coated over, she complained of a bad taste in her mouth, dull headaches, and of feeling languid and tired all the time. She lost her sunny disposition and became nervous, irritable and moody. Her appetite got so poor that I had to coax her to eat. Her sleep was fitful, her eyes dull, and her steps so heavy that it seemed she hadn't strength to lift her feet from the floor.

"She had always stood high in her studies, but now her reports were so bad that her teacher called on me to find out why she had gone back so in her lessons. When I asked her why she had failed so in her school work she cried and said she studied as hard as ever, but couldn't seem to remember. Only a mother can understand what I suffered when I saw my daughter slowly, but surely, fading away each day. I could hardly keep back the tears when I looked at her.

"Six months ago we took her out of school, thinking this might help her, but she continued to grow worse. We were told she would get better when she got older, but I was afraid she couldn't live and have shed many a tear over her condition. In fact, my husband and myself, both, were downright sick from worry over her, and yet, nothing did her any good.

"One day my husband said, 'Why not have Mary try Tanlac? Each morning I have read in the papers of someone being helped by it and it may be what she needs.'

"Well, I had tried everything else, so as a last resort I had Mary try Tanlac and I have felt thankful a thousand times that I did. Before she finished the first bottle she was eating as I have been wanting to see her eat for three years. Now she is the first to the table and the last to leave. She has gained fifteen pounds and is still gaining, and her face is as round and rosy as it ever was. Her eyes sparkle with health, her steps are light, and she is as full of life as a kitten It does my heart good to hear her running around, singing and laughing and enjoying life and good health again. My gratitude to Tanlac is unbounded"

Tanlac is sold in Elyria by J. Adolphus Ebert and leading druggists everywhere—Advt.

$50,000 ADDED TO SHANSI FUND

OBERLIN, Nov 30—The Shansi Memorial association received an additional gift from the Hall Educational fund of $50,000 for the endowment of the association's work in Shansi was announced recently. This makes a total of $100,000 endowment for the association. This endowment, with the contributions from students, faculty and alumni, makes possible the continuance and development of what promises to be a thoroughly founded college in Shansi.

The executive committee of Shansi, in consideration of the increased endowment fund is to appoint two men to go to Shansi and will consider a method whereby these men will be chosen. Four men have already applied for the year's work in China, which the Shansi fund provides for a representative Oberlin graduate. Raymond T. Moyer is the present representative.
